

Flagstaff Hill Coal Drives.

This morning, Mr. Mackenzie, Examiner of Coal Fields for New South Wales, will make an official examination of the old coal workings which extend under Flagstaff Hill. The object is to thoroughly examine them, in view of the works of fortification which are being carried out in that locality. Mr. Mackenzie will be accompanied in his underground travels by an old identity of Newcastle, Mr. Mills, one of the very few remaining miners who wrought in the drives there nearly half a century ago.

1881, May 6th. Newcastle Morning Herald & Miners Advocate, p.2

Mr Mackenzie, Examiner of Coal Fields for New South Wales, accompanied by Mr Mills, makes an official examination of the old coal workings under Flagstaff Hill.

Flagstaff Hill Coal Drives

This morning, Mr Mackenzie, Examiner of Coal Fields for New South Wales, will make an official examination of the old coal workings which extend under Flagstaff Hill. The object is to thoroughly examine them, in view of the works of fortification which are being carried out in that locality. Mr Mackenzie will be accompanied in his underground travels by an old identity of Newcastle, Mr. Mills, one of the very few remaining miners who wrought in the drives there nearly half a century ago.

Transcribed by Gionni Di Gravio

11th February 2004.