

The Fortification Works.

YESTERDAY Colonel Roberts, Major Murphy, Captain Mackenzie, accompanied by Brigade Sergeant-Major Green, arrived in Newcastle to make a preliminary examination at the new fortification works on Allan's Hill. The object of the visit was to ascertain what plant and work would be necessary for placing in position the heavy ordnance in the casemated batteries. The necessary information was made, and it is understood that a detachment of men will be despatched from Sydney, and the work proceeded with by about Monday next. The entire fortifications, it is expected, will be completed by Christmas, and by critical eyes are said likely to prove a thorough credit to the contractor.

1881, October 6th. Newcastle Morning Herald & Miners Advocate, p.2

Colonel Roberts, Major Murphy, Captain Mackenzie and Brigade Sergeant-Major Green inspect the fortification works.

The Fortification Works

Yesterday Colonel Roberts, Major Murphy, Captain Mackenzie , accompanied by Brigade Sergeant- Major Green, arrived in Newcastle to make a preliminary examination at the new fortification works on Allan's Hill. The object of the visit was to ascertain what plant and work would be necessary for placing in position the heavy ordnance [ordnance] in the casemated batteries. The necessary information was made, and it is understood that a detachment of men will be dispatched from Sydney, and the work proceeded with by about Monday next. The entire fortifications, it expected, will be completed by Christmas, by critical eyes are said likely to prove a thorough credit to the contractor.