FOR CIRCULATION WITHIN THE UNIVERSITY OF NEWCASTLE, N.S.W.

NO. 79

21ST MARCH, 1974.

Professor D.W. George.

NEW VICE-CHANCELLOR SELECTED

Professor D.W. George, of the University of Sydney, will succeed Professor J.J. Auchmuty as Vice-Chancellor and Principal of the University of Newcastle.

The Council of the University decided at its meeting on 14th March to invite Professor George to accept the office. He subsequently accepted. Professor George is a graduate in Science and in Engineering of the University of Sydney with First Class Honours in Electrical Engineering. His Doctoral degree for research in the field of Plasma Physics was conferred by the University of Sydney in 1966.

Professor George began his academic career in 1949 as Lecturer in Electrical Engineering at Newcastle Technical College. He subsequently joined the staff of the School of Electrical Engineering in the N.S.W. University of Technology at Broken Hill before accepting an appointment as Research Officer with the United Kingdom Atomic Energy Commission and the Australian Atomic Energy Commission working first at Harwell and later at Lucas Heights.

Following his return to academic life in 1960, Professor George became Associate Professor in Electrical Engineering in the University of Sydney and in 1969 was appointed to the P.N. Russell Chair of Mechanical Engineering in that University. Originally in the area of nuclear energy, Professor George's research interests have moved into the field of direct energy conversion and, particularly, into the area of solar energy, and he is currently a consultant to the Federal Minister of Minerals and Energy in this area of growing national and international interest.

Professor George is a member of the Institute of Defence Science and of the Academy of Science Committee on Solar Energy. He is the author of more than fifty scientific papers and reports in these research fields and is a Fellow of the Institution of Engineers, Australia, of the Institution of Mechanical Engineers, London, of the Institution of Electrical Engineers, London, and is an Associate of the Australian Institute of Physics.

Professor George has been actively involved in administration within the University of Sydney where he is at present a Fellow of the Senate and Chairman of the Professorial Board. In 1970-71 he was President of the Sydney Association of University Teachers.

Professor George is 47 years of age and is married with two children. His wife is a graduate in Arts and a Diplomate in Social Studies of the University of Sydney. Their son is a final year student in Chemical Engineering and their daughter has this year commenced a degree in Education in the University of Sydney.

It is expected that Professor George will succeed Professor Auchmuty as Vice-Chancellor in January, 1975.

CHAIR IN ARCHITECTURE FILLED

The Vice-Chancellor has announced that Professor E.C. Parker, currently University Planner, had been appointed to the second Chair in the Department of Architecture.

Professor Parker undertook his architectural education at the Sydney Technical College where he received his Diploma in Architecture with credit in 1949. In 1953 he became an Associate of the Royal Australian Institute of Architects and was promoted to Fellowship in 1962. After service in the Royal Australian Navy, the State Department of Lands, the Forestry Commission and the Sydney County Council he was appointed a Lecturer in Architecture in the Department of Technical Education on 2nd January, 1951 and was transferred to the University of Technology in August, 1954.

At the end of 1956 he was appointed Supervising Lecturer in Architecture at the Newcastle University College and the following year became the first full-time member of the architectural staff of the College in Newcastle. He was promoted to Senior Lecturer in 1959 and became Associate Professor of the independent University of Newcastle in May, 1965. To Mr. Parker as Supervising and subsequently Senior Lecturer was given the task of establishing a School of Architecture at Newcastle as a branch School of Architecture to the University of New South Wales. Because of the shortage of staff, for some time after his arrival in Newcastle, he still continued to lecture on at least one day a week at Kensington.

Professor Auchmuty said that in Newcastle Professor Parker immediately established himself as one of the leaders in his profession and had been Chairman of the Newcastle Division of the N.S.W. Chapter of the Royal Australian Institute of Architects; a member of the Council of the N.S.W. Chapter and a member of the N.S.W. Board of Architectural Education. He had taken a very active part in the cultural life of the Newcastle area and since 1965 he had been in charge of the planning and maintenance section of the University, where his great services as University Planner over a ten year period of development would be recognized by all who visit the site.

Professor Parker had two great achievements to his credit in Newcastle. The first was the establishment of a viable independent School of Architecture, which produced some outstanding honours graduates when it was under his care, and, secondly, the organization and control, under a master plan for which he was a principal advisor, of the best developed modern University site in Australia.

CONSEQUENCES OF LIQUOR APPLICATIONS

The Vice-Chancellor's Committee on the Whole Future of Control of the University Site, Its Buildings and Its Activities, advises as follows:

"It is likely that in the not too distant future authority will be procured for liquor to be sold and supplied to members of the Union and of the Staff House Club and their guests. By virtue of a club licence and of a campus permit, the terms of the authority in respect of both the Union and Staff House will be the same, viz. that liquor may be sold and supplied to members and their guests on the premises in question.

The legislation creates a number of criminal offences. In some instances liability rests on the holder of the licence or permit and in others it rests on other persons. An example of the latter is that in the case of a campus permit a person commits an offence if he carries away liquor from the premises unless he proves that the liquor was in his possession before he entered the premises.

Like all authorities under the Liquor Act 1912, a club licence and a campus permit involve a measure of police inspection and control. The police in question are the persons appointed as district inspector (and district sub-inspectors) for the Newcastle licensing district. The Act makes it their duty to use all due vigilance and to take all lawful means to enforce compliance within the provision of the Act. The Act will give the "licensing police" power to enter the Union and Staff House, to examine every room, to take an account of all liquor and so on. Of course the licensing police are also expressly empowered to enter on campus in order to gain access to the Union and Staff House. It is a criminal offence to refuse or fail to admit an inspector or to obstruct him in the discharge of his duty. The offender is liable to a penalty not exceeding $200 and the licence or permit may be cancelled.

The chief reason for publishing the foregoing information is simply to make students and staff aware of the fact that the forms of authority conferred by the Act will involve periodic inspections by the licensing police of the Union and Staff House."

(In Newcastle Licensing Court on Wednesday, 13th March, the Full Bench of the Licensing Magistrates upheld the Staff Club's appeal against the refusal of its application for a Club liquor licence.

The Court granted a conditional licence, which will become absolute when an order to that effect is made in Sydney, and such an order will be made after the Club installs the necessary equipment (e.g. a glass-washing machine) to the satisfaction of Newcastle Licensing Police.

It is only once the order is made absolute that liquor may be sold and supplied upon the Club premises. It is hoped that the order absolute will be obtained in about a fortnight's time from 13th March.)

Mr. John Burne, newly appointed Activities Officer for the Union, has announced the formation of a Jazz Club and a Folk Club and the introduction of regular film screenings in the Union.

The Jazz Club is mainly concerned with "life" jazz and meets on Thursdays at 12.30 p.m. A "house" band (clarinet, trombone, piano, bass and drums) is augmented by musicians who "sit in". It has been suggested that dances and river cruises be provided for supporters of the Club.

The Folk Club will meet in the McLarty Room on Tuesday, 26th March, from 1 to 2 p.m. to draft a list of activities for first term. Folk singers and folk fans are invited.

Feature films are being screened in the Common Room on Fridays at 1 p.m. and a timetable of lunch-hour "pop" concerts is being prepared. Students will be asked to toss coins into a garbage bin while functions are in progress so that the Union will not have to meet all the cost of staging the film shows, concerts and other activities.

"Traffic" will be screened on 29th March and "Bedazzled" on 5th April.

The Department of Community Programmes and the Health Commission of N.S.W. will present a consultation entitled "Our Environment and Threats to Health" in the Great Hall Reception Room on 4th and 5th April.

The pamphlet explaining the consultation states: "The purpose is to consider the price in health that people pay, and could pay, for their economic and recreational activities, to identify so far as possible the main environment threats to our health and to consider how these threats might be averted".

The speakers will include Mrs. Julie Hayes, Secretary of the Hunter Regional Coalition of Resident Action Groups, Dr. Gordon Kerridge (Orthopaedic Surgeon), Dr. Lock Lang (Staff Obstetrician, Royal Newcastle Hospital), Dr. George McCririck (Medical Officer of Health) and Mr. Kevin McDonald (Senior Lecturer in Biological Sciences, Newcastle Teachers' College).

Enrolment forms can be obtained from the Department of Community Programmes.

Preliminary enrolment figures for this year showed an increase in the intake of new first year students over last year, the Vice-Chancellor said at the meeting of the University Council on 14th March.

He said the number of new first year students, as at 5th March, stood at 1,087 - up more than 100 on the intake in 1973. The actual enrolment was below the target figure - 1,350.

Comparisons of new first year enrolments in Faculties with those for 1973:

	1973 (net enrolments at 30 - 4 - '73)	1974 (enrolled by 5 - 3 - '74)	Increase or Decrease
Applied Science	19	24	+26%
Architecture	36	35
Arts	389	406	+4%
Economics and Commerce	164	205	+25%
Engineering	146	211	+45%
Mathematics	71	63	-11%
Science	134	143	+7%
	<hr/> 959	<hr/> 1,087

Undergraduate re-enrolments and postgraduate enrolments totalled 2,776 as at 5th March. This, with the 1,087 new first year students, gives a total enrolment of 3,863 students. (When University News went to press, the total enrolment was 4,122 - Editor).

The Vice-Chancellor said a lot of people had predicted that with the abolition of university fees this year there would be a swing to enrolment by full-time students. In fact, the swing was to enrolment by part-timers, whose numbers had increased by about 5 per cent.

He said it was interesting to learn that despite the abolition of fees there had not been a rush on Australian universities. Only two of the universities had enrolments exceeding the estimated Equivalent Full-time Students figure. The reduction in the pressure on universities was a phenomenon evident in universities in all English-speaking countries.

AWARDS FOR COMMONWEALTH UNIVERSITY STAFF

The Association of Commonwealth Universities has published a handbook giving details of fellowships, visiting professorships, grants, etc., open to university staff in a Commonwealth country who wish to carry out research, make study visits or teach for a while at a University in another Commonwealth country.

It is proposed to obtain a copy of the handbook for the Library and the Staff House, but in the meantime a copy is held by Student Administration. Any member of staff wishing to consult the handbook should contact this department.

The University has received information about a new biennial festival - "Australia '75" - to be held in Canberra starting in March next year.

Promotion and encouragement of the study and development of Australian talents in arts, science and technology is the prime object of the Festival.

During the Festival exhibitions will show developments in Australian research, industry and technology, together with displays of Australian art. Performances of Australian music, drama, other performing arts, lectures, readings and demonstrations will be presented at a variety of venues around the city.

The Festival's budget will be met through the Council for the Arts, the Treasury, the Department of the Capital Territory and private enterprise.

Further information may be obtained from the Executive Officer, Mr. T.Z. Whitgob, Room 141, First Floor, North Building, Civic Offices, London Circuit, Canberra City, 2601, telephone 46 2715.

The first presentation by the Student Players for 1974 will be a workshop reading of Vacant, a one-act play by Larry Galbraith. It will be performed in the Arts/Drama Theatre on Monday, 25th March, at 7.30 p.m.

Vacant is set in a turn-of-the-century bungalow in one of Newcastle's inner suburbs and has a cast of three - all university students. The play deals with the events that occur in the last night spent by the students in the bungalow. The play will be directed by Robin Laidlaw and the students will be played by Dianne Gatgens, Ken Dray and Stephen Thornton.

After the performance, the Student Players will hold its Annual General Meeting in the Union Dining Room. This will be followed by a forum on the play. The audience is invited to take part. Leading the discussion will be Mr. Jeff Quinn, honours graduate in English in this university and currently a Ph.D. student at the University of Sydney. Liquid refreshments will be served.

Professor Kevin Lindgren, of the Department of Legal Studies at the University, and Associate Professor Barry Gordon, of the Department of Economics, are Co-editors with Mr. H.H. Mason, of the University of Queensland, of The Corporation and Australian Society, a book just published by The Law Book Company Limited.

The book consists of a collection of writings exploring the operation of corporations in Australia and their impact on the lives of Australians in a number of areas. The collection of essays has been designed to meet the needs of students enrolled and enrolling in a number of burgeoning courses of an interdisciplinary nature in Australian universities and other tertiary institutions. Most of the essays have been contributed by academics having expertise in disciplines on which the corporation impinges. However, essays by two leading Australian businessmen have also been included in order to give "business" an opportunity to express what it considers to be desirable modes of corporate behaviour. Another essay by a non-academic is that written by Senator R.G. Withers.

Academics from the University of Newcastle who contributed essays are Mr. T. Presbury, Mr. V.G. Taylor, Professor Gordon, Professor Lindgren, Mr. S.N. Jacobi and Professor B.L. Johns.
