Four changes have occurred in the membership of the Council of the University as a result of the biennial elections.

Alderman Joy Cummings, Alderman Allan Morris, Mr Rodney Harden and Professor Michael Carter are new members of the Council.

Ballots were necessary to fill vacancies in two categories of membership of the Council - Convocation (five members) and Professors (two members).

In the ballot to elect the Professorial members the voting was:

- Michael Percy Carter 24
- Reynold Gilbert Keats 37
- Saxon William White 17
- Professors Carter and Keats were consequently declared elected to the Council.

In the ballot to decide the five members elected by Convocation voting was:

- Edmund James Buckman 468
- Warren Gerard Derkenne 553
- Peter Ian Alexander Hendry 458
- Phillip John Miller 370

The number of votes polled by Dr Hendry and Mr Belcher being equal it was necessary to determine by lot the candidate to be elected. Mr Belcher was the successful candidate.

In consequence, Messrs Belcher, Derkenne and Relf, Alderman Morris and Dr White were declared elected.

Another election was held to fill four vacancies in another category of membership of the Council, namely members elected by members of the Council themselves.

This election resulted in the reelection for a further term of retiring members Mr Alec Forsythe and Dr Frank Purdue and the election of Alderman Cummings and Mr Harden.

Alderman Cummings is Lord Mayor of the City of Newcastle. Mr Harden, General Manager of the BHP Company's Newcastle steelworks, is a BSc (Metallurgy) graduate of the University of New South Wales.

He has been a member of the Council of Newcastle College of Advanced Education since 1973. Alderman Morris graduated from this university with a B.A. degree in 1968. He has been a member of Newcastle City Council since 1974.
UNIVERSITY APPOINTS
PRO VICE-CHANCELLOR

Professor Ray Golding has been appointed a Pro-Vice-Chancellor of the University of New South Wales. Professor Golding will succeed Professor Albert Willis who will retire in July.

Professor Golding, who is Professor of Theoretical and Physical Chemistry and Head of the University's School of Chemistry, is a distinguished scientist who also has a reputation as a fine administrator and academic diplomat. Professor Golding, a New Zealander, was appointed to the staff of the University in 1968 from his former position as a senior research scientist with the New Zealand Department of Scientific and Industrial Research. As one of the University's three Pro-Vice-Chancellors he will assist the Vice-Chancellor, Professor Rupert Myers, in the administration of the University.

STUDY LEAVE

The Council of the University is of the opinion that any proposal for a reduction in properly-programmed and carefully-vetted study leave should be approached with the greatest caution.

The Council has informed the Minister for Education (Senator Carrick) and the Tertiary Education Commission that its experience lends the strongest support to this view.

The TEC had asked the University to comment on a draft report which recommends a marked reduction in study leave for academic staffs at Australian universities.

After assessing submissions from the Senate and the Staff Association and other material which was placed before it, the Council, at a special meeting on June 30, agreed that the Chancellor (Sir Bede Callaghan) should send copies of the submissions to the Tertiary Education Commission and generally commend them to the attention of those concerned with the preparation of the final report on study leave.

Council also agreed that the Chancellor should comment in these terms: "The subject of the Draft Report is one to which the Council of this University has over the years given close attention. Indeed, it has been the practice of Council to have every application for study leave vetted in the first instance by the Head of the relevant Department, then by the Dean concerned and then by the Vice-Chancellor. In following this vetting the Vice-Chancellor recommends approval, the application is considered by the Finance & Personnel Committee of Council and I add that approval has not been required in any means been automatic. Moreover, every member of staff for whom study leave has been authorised is required to give to Council a detailed report of the work undertaken while away from the University. It is against this background that Council has examined the Draft Report.

Council resolved that the Chancellor send a copy of his letter to the Tertiary Education Commission to Senator Carrick because members of Council consider the subject of such grave importance.

ENTERTAINING DEBATES

Debaters representing the Universities of Cambridge and Glasgow sampled Newcastle hospitality on July 7 in return for some highly entertaining visits elsewhere.

Andrew Mitchell, Daniel Janner and Daphne Romney (Cambridge) and Jim Shearer, David Roberts and Ewan Sutherland (Glasgow) are appearing on behalf of their universities at an international debating festival at the University of Sydney. They visited the University of Newcastle at the invitation of the Union and the Debating Society. Cambridge and Glasgow teams will also have the opportunity to debate at Melbourne and Adelaide Universities before leaving Australia on July 31.

That Women Make Policy Not Coffee, But Men Make the Best Coffee was the topic debated by the teams in the courtyard at lunchtime while the return debate in the evening was concerned with That We Are The Vice Masters of Our Fate. Newcastle's Debating Society made a contribution to the lighthearted entertainment by entering a team in a debate which considered That Groucho Is Preferable to Karl.

Thanks to help from Honeywell Pty. Ltd. (the United States computer firm), the University Cooperative Bookshop and AIS Travel, the Union at the University of Sydney managed to organise the international debating festival, involving overseas and Australian university teams. Other overseas teams are from Oxford in Britain, Harvard, Columbia and Oregon Universities in the United States and Auckland and Canterbury in New Zealand.

Mr Ted Marr, President of Sydney Union, accompanied the English visitors to Newcastle. Daphne Romney commented on the enjoyable outdoor venue for the lunchtime debate, rarely a possibility in England because the weather is too cold.

IT'S A MAD WORLD, MY MASTERS

Not long before the Puritans banned the stage, English comedy was at its vital funny and bawdy best. Tom Middleton's masterpiece A Mad World, My Masters is a prize example. It's being produced by the Drama Department with live music, bright costumes and a stage covered with scaffolding at the Arts/Drama Theatre starting Wednesday, August 2, for two weeks only. It's the sort of play where party and group bookings are most justified - Social Secretaries take note.

Bookings open soon at the Union, Civic and Community Programmes (for group bookings).

SCHOLARSHIP IN THE U.K. FOR GRADUATE

Mr. Errol Hodge, Editor of Radio Australia and a graduate of Newcastle University College, has been awarded a 1978 Imperial Relations Trust scholarship. Two scholarships are awarded each year to enable Australians to spend five months in Britain investigating aspects of British life that interest them. The areas of British life Mr. Hodge will be looking at are the working of the Westminster system of government, the conservation and restoration of historic buildings, trends in the ministry of women and the ministry of the laity in the Church of England. British stereotypes of Australians and the musical, theatrical and literary life and heritage of Britain.

Mr. Hodge left Australia on May 11. He was accompanied by his wife, Judy. A former pupil of Newcastle Boys' High School, he was a journalist with the ABC in Newcastle.

THE MAP LIBRARY:
25,500 ITEMS

Where in the university would you find 22,500 maps which members of the university's population can consult freely? The Map Library in the Department of Geography is, perhaps, one of our lesser known research resources, but it has been operating since 1955 and, for the last five years, in room R205 in the Social Sciences Building. The size and comprehensiveness of the collection of maps belies the library's unobtrusiveness and the fact is that all staff and students are able to make use of it.

Aerial photographs of parts of Newcastle and the Hunter Valley, a selection of class copies and copies of research theses written by students in Geography are also available. The library can be visited between 10.30 am and 12.30 pm and 2 and 4.30 pm. Visitors should see the Map Curator, Mrs M. Graham, or members of the staff, who are the only persons permitted to open the map cabinets.

Maps are frail documents, can be easily defaced, are often difficult to replace and need careful handling. Nevertheless, the Department of Geography wants its collection of maps to be a working collection - to be used rather than kept as an archive.

Only rarely can maps be taken out of the Department of Geography, but there are facilities for their perusal in a nearby laboratory which has a large light table.

Mrs Graham in the Map Library.

It is not possible to make copies in the map library, Mrs Graham says, but she will consider giving permission for maps to be borrowed briefly so they can be copied in the Union or the Auchmuty Library. Because of political limitations, it has been extremely difficult to obtain maps of Russia, China, South East Asia and some South American countries. However, the material available in connection with other countries is extensive and the library is one of the largest in universities in Australia. Some lengthy and time-consuming searching is often necessary to locate maps so it is always advisable to phone Ext. 649 beforehand to make an appointment. This also avoids conflict with the needs of departmental staff and students.

UNIVERSITY DINNER

A professor who will vacate his chair and one who recently filled an identical office will each speak at the University Dinner in the Wistaria Room of the Union on July 21. Professor Alex Ritchie, who retires as Professor of Philosophy at the end of this year, will toast the university and the Chancellor (Sir Bede Callaghan) will respond. The Vice-Chancellor will give the Hail and Farewell toast, the response to which will be delivered by Professor Beverley Raphael, a new arrival who is Professor of Psychiatry.

Mr Hodge
HISTORY CLUB

ANNUAL DINNER

The History Club will hold its annual dinner in the University Staff House on Friday, August 4, at 7 p.m. Professor G. A. Cranfield, former head of the History Department, will be the host speaker. The all-inclusive cost of the dinner is $7.50 for members and $8.00 for non-members. Dress will be semi-formal.

Tickets which can be obtained from Carol Bacchi, Room A1017a, Ext. 264, must be reserved before August 2.

Professor Cranfield has been Professor of Modern History and Head of the Department of History since 1965. Educated at Queens' College, Cambridge, he served in the Royal Navy from 1941 to 1946. He was a Lecturer in History at the N.S.W. University of Technology between 1952 and 1954 and a Senior Lecturer in History at Newcastle University College. He relinquished the Headship of the History Department earlier this year. His major publications are: The Development of the Provincial Newspaper, 1700-1760 (1962) and The Press and Society: From Caxton to Northcliffe, published earlier this year.

TRIP TO SOUTH POLE PROPOSED

The Australian Institute of International Affairs is endeavouring to organise a one-day trip to the South Pole. If the response is favourable, the N.S.W. Branch Council will start making the necessary arrangements for the flight, which will be towards the end of the year. It is expected that the cost would be in the vicinity of $255 - $300 for each participant. Both members and non-members of the Institute are able to participate.

Accompanying the tourists will be a Polar expert and a representative of the Department of Foreign Affairs (Antarctic Division).

If you are interested in joining the one-day tour to the Pole, you should let Associate Professor I. Freedman, of the Department of History, know. The next meeting of the Newcastle group of the Institute will be at 8.30 p.m. on Tuesday, July 28 at the Staff House on July 28 at 8.30 p.m. Mr Jim Reeves will give a paper entitled, "Tropic Paradise or Prize of the Naval Race?".

POSTMISTRESS LEAVES THE UNIVERSITY

Foundation Postmistress, Mrs Lorraine Abraham, retires on July 14 after 12 years in the position. Mrs Abraham is a very well-known face, as practically every member of the university has reason to use the post office's services.

Mrs Abraham began her career at the University of Newcastle in January, 1966. She was in charge of the mail counter, which was located on the lower ground floor of the Arts Building in the vicinity of the Department of History. She was a Member of the Bursar's Division until the P.M.O.'s Department opened the University Post Office in July, 1966.

Mrs Abraham begins her working day at 8.30 a.m. by sorting the incoming mail, the volume of which, she says, has increased tenfold since 1966. She opens up the post office at 9 o'clock, at which point the mail is collected by the Messenger/Drivers and taken to the various departments. She spends most of her day serving at the counter but there is also the sorting of outgoing mail, except for the personal letters mailed through the box.

The Postmistress assured members of the university that they were normally cooperative and understanding. In particular the students. She had, however, noted a lot of staff resentment to increases in postal charges. This week the university staff members who operate in the vicinity of the Post Office have been saying their farewells to Mrs Abraham. She doesn't intend to make a trip to Surfers, or have a holiday anywhere distant after she leaves. Her plans are to settle back home in New Lambton with her husband, an ex-prisoner of war, who has not been able to work for several years. She also wants to spend a lot more time with her daughter and her two grandchildren.

Mrs Coleen Wyatt, of Warner's Bay, has been appointed Postmistress to follow Mrs Abraham.

CANADIAN NAMED AS VICE-CHANCELLOR

A noted scientist in the fields of astrophysics and X-ray astronomy has been named as the University of Queensland's new Vice-Chancellor. Professor Brian G. Wilson, 46, Vice-President, Academic, of Simon Fraser University in British Columbia since 1970, is expected to take up his appointment at the University of Queensland early next year.

Professor Wilson succeeds Sir Zelman Cowen, who resigned the Vice-Chancellorship in 1977 to become Australia's Governor-General. In the interim, Professor G. N. Davies has been Acting Vice-Chancellor.

Professor Wilson took up his present office at Simon Fraser University in 1970, and is concurrently Professor of Astronomy. Professor Wilson was born in Belfast in 1930. In 1960 he became Associate Professor in the Department of Physics of the University of Calgary.
GRADUATES SHOULD DEFEND UNIVERSITIES

There was a need for the University of Newcastle to stress not only its role in teaching and research but also its consultancy role, Professor Ken Dutton said at the annual general meeting of Convocation on June 28.

At a time when expansion of universities is to stop, cutbacks are to begin, enrolments are to be pegged and there is a crisis of public confidence in universities, Professor Dutton, Immediate Past Warden of Convocation, spoke on "Some Contemporary Issues for the University of Newcastle".

The standing of the University in the eyes of the Newcastle community, Professor Dutton contended, had been, and remained, high.

"If we are to maintain this image in a city of high unemployment and not be seen as a community, we must continue to emphasise our positive contribution to the life of the city, the region and the country as a whole," he said.

There were a few ways in which one thought this could be done. Through such bodies as TUNRA and our Institute of Industrial Economics we can make an enormous contribution to the clarification - the resolution - of some of the problems of local business and industry. This does not directly affect the man in the street, Professor Dutton said, for it appears aimed largely at the local captains of industry and commerce, but perhaps we can show the man in the street that it does affect him indirectly.

Second, the work of our Department of Community Programmes - making available the University's educational resources is itself a service for which we should be proud. Professor Dutton asked: What better argument can we mount against the accusation that we are an ivory tower than this provision of expert personnel to assist the community at large in its need for open access to information and education on issues to which we can contribute our intellectual capital?

Allied with the work of Community Programmes is the service that can be provided by the University Radio Station - is it to us seen merely as an expensive toy for a number of radio and music enthusiasts, or a voice only of radical dissent, or is it to be a genuinely educational medium for the benefit of the community as a whole?

Thirdly, there is the role of Convocation - still the most active such body, in proportion to its size, in any university in Australia, he stated.

"When we say that Convocation is defined in the University of Newcastle. As part of the University, are we merely perpetuating a legal fiction? Or do we mean that our graduates have a real part, a vital part, in assisting the University to get across its role and purpose to the community in which they earn their living?"

"If we mean the latter, then it is clear that this role has never been more vitally necessary than today," Professor Dutton said.

When universities come under attack in the press, must the only response come from university staff with the reduced credibility that comes from their vested interests?

"Where are the graduates? Why are not their voices raised to defend university values? Do they so lightly shrug off the importance of their university experience? Or can they be reminded that the University's problems are their problems because what the University is trying to do with the present generation of students is exactly what it did for them?"

"Can the graduates be persuaded to assist in more tangible ways, by helping provide the sorts of endowments which our older sister-institutions possess?"

The sums required are not beyond the big enterprises and firms of this city, many of which are headed by graduates, Professor Dutton stated.

"I don't minimise the problems of business and industry in this somewhat depressed region, but is it not worth the attempt?"

"Or are we stuck with the irony that it is only in the capital cities that such endowments will be made and that we, who need them far more, are the least likely to receive them?"

Another question to which I don't know the answer, but I think it may at least be premature to reply in a negative way until one has at least tried," he added.

MR RELF CONTINUES AS WARDEN

Mr B.W. Relf, a 1973 Arts graduate of the university and Member of the University Council since 1976, was reelected unopposed to the Wardenship of Convocation at Convocation's annual meeting on June 28.

Mr Relf had completed a term of office lasting two years. His term will expire in 1980.

Miss Jess Dyce and Mr W.J. Crook complied with the constitution and resigned from the Standing Committee of Convocation. The constitution provides that members shall serve for no more than three years.

Mrs Margaret Harvey, a B.A. graduate of the University of Sydney, who is an English teacher at St Anne's High School, Kotara, and Professor C.D. Ellyett, Head of the Department of Physics, were nominated for election to the committee. Members of Convocation also nominated Mr J.A. Lambert, of the Computing Centre, and Mr J.W. Armstrong, of the Secretary's Division, who had been appointed to fill casual vacancies early this year.

There were no more nominations than the number of vacancies on Standing Committee these four were elected.

Members of the Committee whose terms of office did not expire this year are Professor K.R. Dutton, Mr V.H. Levi, Mr J.F. Hill; Mrs A. Morris, Mrs E. Morrison, Mr P. Miller (Treasurer), Mr K.A. Laffey, Mr B.J. Young (Secretary) and Mr H. Whitton.

The Warden and the Secretary told graduates who attended the meeting that in 1977 Convocation had presented an active and successful programme to mark the 25th anniversary of university education in the Hunter Valley.

The Treasurer reported that Convocation's balance of funds was approximately $6,350.
When sunny conditions prevailed after bleak winds this week, the campus presented an inviting scene for the photographer.

THE BIRDSVILLE TRACK IN FOUR-WHEEL DRIVES

A course organised by the Department of Community Programmes will permit people who own four-wheel drive vehicles to undertake an extended tour of the Outback.

The course is fully enrolled. Those who have enrolled will join a convoy of four-wheel drives at Broken Hill on August 28, tour the Birdsville Track (skirting salt lake beds and passing through the Channel country, gibber and sand dune deserts) and break convoy at Bourke on September 7.

Stops will be made at places of particular interest along the way. Lectures on the geomorphology, flora, fauna and folklore of the inland will be given.

A comfortable driving programme, averaging about 200km each day, will be compiled with. Radio communications will be maintained between the first and last vehicles in the convoy and with the Royal Flying Doctor Service. Salvage apparatus and tools will be taken and a qualified mechanic will travel with the convoy.

Every vehicle will carry, among other things, a container sufficient to carry fuel for 500km, over tank capacity and a container sufficient to carry 10 litres of drinking water per person.

A Staff v Students Golf Day will be held on July 28 at Steel Works Golf Links commencing at noon. The contest will take the same form as the event held on June 9; it will be a Stableford competition run in conjunction with a 4-ball-best-ball competition. Enquiries should be directed to Mr Jock Armstrong, Ext. 469.
OPEN HOUSE IN MEDICINE

Having commenced as a three-man (one woman) faculty in January, 1975, and having operated in temporary accommodation for some time the Faculty of Medicine occupied the Medical Sciences Building, its own accommodation on the campus, early this year. In response to the interest shown in the Faculty and its plans for medical education by staff members of the university an Open House will be held on July 18, the theme for which is: Medical Sciences Building, Lecture Theatre, 4 p.m., the Dean (Professor David Maddison) welcomes staff members, followed by a talk by Professor Rufus Clarke on Undergraduate Education and a talk by Professor Saxon White on Research Development (these are their special areas of responsibility), followed by a conducted tour of the building and refreshments. Professor Meddisan has asked the University News to extend a cordial invitation to all staff members.

SCIENCE CONGRESS SCHEDULED FOR AUCKLAND

At least 3,000 delegates are expected to attend the 49th Congress of ANZAAS (the Australian and New Zealand Association for the Advancement of Science) to be held at Auckland University from January 22 to 26, 1979. The Congress will have the theme Directions for the Future. The topics are far more diverse than the name ANZAAS suggests. The congress sections cover not only the physical, natural and medical sciences and the social sciences, including anthropology, psychology, sociology and industrial relations, but also history, economics, and "applied" sciences such as architecture, engineering, mining, agriculture and forestry.

For the Auckland Congress special sections are planned on sports science, oenology (wine science), musicology, and trace metals research. The keynote speakers (there will be about 27) are expected to include some of the international leaders in their fields. Apart from the specialist sections a number of symposia will be held on more wide-ranging topics under the overall Directions for the Future theme. These will include Economic and Social Planning (arranged by the New Zealand Planning Council), Oil - an Australasian Response to Dwindling Resources (arranged by the N.Z. Energy Research and Development Committee), Conservation in the Southern Oceans and Australasia, Children in Society (as part of the International Year of the Child) and Modern Drug Treatment - Benefits and Risks.

Apart from the business sessions of the 49th Congress, there will be an extensive variety of tours and walks for conference delegates and their families including visits to historic homes, city shops, gardens, beaches, and the Waitakere, MOTAT and the Zoo, the works of N.Z. Steel, the Naval Dockyard, the Viticultural Research Station at Te Kauwhata and the John Waititi Marae. A programme of musical and other cultural events is planned throughout the week too, including orchestral and choral concerts and opera and ballet workshops. Prospective Australian delegates should make enquiries from the official co-ordination airline for the 49th Congress in Australia - Trans Australian Airlines.

Old Government House, Auckland, built in 1866 and carefully preserved in its original gardens, is now Auckland University's staff common room. It will be a social centre for next January's 49th ANZAAS Congress.
