The Great Hall will assume the role of an Art Gallery on the weekend of September 11 and 12.

To promote the Lord Mayor's Hunter Regional Art Gallery Appeal, more than 100 privately-owned and university-owned works of art, including pottery, sculpture and several tapestries, will be exhibited. The art exhibition will commence with a gala opening on September 10 at 8 p.m. Music will be provided by Newcastle Conservatorium and Michael Dudman (organ). Admission to the opening is by ticket ($3.50) obtainable from the Deputy Vice-Chancellor (Professor L.N. Short, Ext. 407).

The Great Hall exhibition will be open to the public free of charge on September 11, from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. and September 12, from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

A feature will be the showing of items recently acquired by the university. These include Red Movement, by Christine Ross, Sense Alive, by John Montefiore, and Cave I, by Mary Beeston.

In all the exhibition embraces 110 works of art, of which 80 belong to members of the university's staff. Professor Short, Chairman of the organising committee, has expressed his group's gratitude for this support.

Not only will it be the first public display of the university's main art possessions, but it will also be the first time the disparate parts have been combined to form something like a whole. Normally the items are separated and hung or stored in several buildings on the campus.

The collection of art works for the University began in 1957 when the first graduates in Arts of the old University College presented their Department with a painting by Carl Plate. Another painting, by William Salmon, was presented... by Arts graduates in 1958. Since then works have been purchased by the University or donated, the sources of the donations including the Faculty Wives Group, private and public organisations, service clubs, students, members of staff and citizens. Funds are derived from an annual recurrent allocation and contributions by members of staff. The collection is unusual in that good local artists are strongly represented. These include Irvine Homer, Richards, Norma Allen, Virginia Geyl, Patricia Englund, Montifore, Ross and Beeston. Homer's "The Student Teacher's first Billet", four banners by Mrs Richards and Mrs Geyl's "A Tale of Three Towers" hang in the Great Hall along with works by such nationally-famed painters as Margaret Olley, Louis James, Lloyd Rees and Elwyn Lynn. The diversity of the collection is demonstrated by the ceramic by Persephone: "The Arriya", by Lucy and Hatton Beck, the sculpture by Don Morris and tapestries by Rae Richards and Mary Beeton. Overlooking the people visiting the exhibition and the works of art will be the stained glass panels above the main doors of the Great Hall, made by Mr P. Handel of Sydney.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Dear Sir,

John Armstrong has raised an interesting conservation issue in his letter published in the recent University News suggesting that artificial feeding of birds should be carried out on the University campus. Many users of the site would agree that birds, both feathered and otherwise, add considerably to the attractiveness of the environment and that we should do everything we can to encourage them.

I support the aim of encouraging the continued presence of Australian native bird species on the University campus, where at least 41 species have been observed, but I believe there are more desirable ways of achieving this end than by artificial feeding. Feeding birds in one's backyard may be a pleasant and rewarding pastime so long as your neighbours do not object, but I do not believe that the introduced pest species such as starlings, sparrows, to the detriment of the less aggressive native species. Artificial feeding of seed-eaters is relatively simple. Feeding honey-eaters can be more labour intensive and when it comes to insect-eaters artificial feeding becomes much more difficult.

D.D. MORRIS,
University Planner.

I would suggest that the following procedures are more desirable in the long term:

1. Discourage aggressive exotic birds from the site as they compete with the native species for food, nesting sites and territory.
2. Remove from the site stray cats which are the major introduced predator of birds.
3. Minimise the use of insecticides which are likely to be detrimental to the insect-eating bird population.
4. Plant suitable nectar bearing and fruit producing native shrubs and trees.
5. Maintain adequate natural habitats on the University site.
6. Retain nesting sites such as hollow limbs and dead trees where possible and provide artificial nesting sites where the natural ones have been removed.

WEALTH OF NATIONS COMMEMORATED

This year marks the 200th anniversary of the publication of Wealth of Nations, the work of Scottish economist Adam Smith (1723-90) that founded modern classical economics. To commemorate the bi-centenary the Department of Economics has invited Professor A.J. Youngson, of the Australian National University, to give a public lecture at the University. Professor Youngson is a former Professor of Economics History at the University of Edinburgh. He is now Director of the Research School of Social Sciences, Australian National University. The lecture will be given in the main lecture theatre (B1) on September 22 commencing at 2 p.m.

The title: "The Health of Nations and the Omnipotent State 1776-1976". First-year students in Economics and Economic History, and students and members of staff, should find the lecture worthwhile.

SYDNEY POSTGRADUATES SEEK SUPPORT OF LOCAL POSTGRADUATES

Sydney University Postgraduate Representative Association has asked postgraduates from this University to support the Association's protests over the Government's economy measures concerning students. SUPRA is urging the students to support various programs being organised against the introduction of fees for second and higher degree students and the level and method of assistance to tertiary students in general. It suggests that the postgraduate students write to their local MHR.

"The Government is well aware of the fact that students have had no increases in allowances since January, 1975, while during this period inflation has steadily decreased the real value of the allowance. It seems hardly necessary for the government to call for an enquiry in the 1976 Budget to re-inform themselves of the position stated above.

"Further, the Government is proposing alterations to the method of assisting students through living allowances. We believe the current system of means tested living allowances for undergraduates and postgraduate stipends awarded on merit to be the fairest method of allocating the nation's resources. In the long term investment in tertiary education. We are further concerned over the pressure being applied to the area of postgraduate research. New Commonwealth research awards are to be reduced from $900 to $300 per year: the CSIRO will not be awarding scholarships (contrary to its charter): the Universities are reducing their own awards, due to budgeting pressures; and grants-in-aid to support research expenditure by postgraduates are to be cut. "All the above, coupled with the loss of postgraduate talent, through hardship caused by the reintroduction of postgraduate fees will only serve to jeopardize future growth and development in Australia," the Sydney University body states.
Chair of Commerce Filled

The Vice-Chancellor of the University (Professor D.W. George) has announced the appointment of Dr A.J. Williams to a Chair of Commerce within the University. Dr Williams is a graduate of the Universities of Tasmania (BCom, DipEd), Melbourne (BEd) and Western Australia (PhD), and holds a Graduate Diploma in Administration from the Western Australian Institute of Technology where he is currently Senior Lecturer in the Department of Accounting and Business Studies. In 1975 he was a visiting Senior Lecturer in the Department of Accounting and Financial Management at the University of New England. Dr Williams' recent research has been in the field of management consultancy, on which he is currently one of Australia's leading authorities. He has operated a management consultancy service in Tasmania and has acted in a consulting/counselling capacity to firms in Western Australia.

La Trobe University's Next Vice-Chancellor

The La Trobe University Council has announced the University's next Vice-Chancellor. He is Professor John Fraser Watt, MA (Cantab.), MA (Oxon.) (ScD). He will take up his appointment from July 15, 1977. He succeeds La Trobe's foundation Vice-Chancellor, Dr David Myers, who retires at the end of this year.

Professor Scott will take up his appointment from July 15, 1977. He succeeds La Trobe's foundation Vice-Chancellor, Dr David Myers, who retires at the end of this year. LEARNING BY PUBLIC EXHIBITION

First-year Design students in the Department of Architecture have successfully attracted public attention to their exhibition which deals with fine old homes in the Lower Hunter Valley. The exhibition is on view at Garden City shopping centre.

The subject chosen was the houses erected on original land grants in the Lower Hunter River Valley 1800-1850. The exhibition began a season in the Mall at Garden City on Saturday, September 6. It will be dismantled after 3 weeks and centre close on September 11. Students are constantly in attendance.

When a selection had to be made in the Department, from the students' designs for exhibition stands, Koon Hean Chua was successful. Tomago House, Stradbroke, Kinross, Closebourne and Neotsfield are some of the stately old homes referred to in the exhibition and other display material includes working drawings, sale notices and maps.

Senate Notes

Senate reviewed the operations of the Internal Research Assessment Committee at its meeting on September 1. The Committee has functioned since early this year to consider applications from individual members of staff for special research grants from the university's Special Research Funds and to make a final selection. Senate was told that all members of the academic staff of lecturer rank and above were given the chance to apply for funds.

Fourteen applications for Category A grants and 31 applications for Category B grants were received. Category A applicants are members of staff at junior academic level who have completed a research higher degree or equivalent and at the time of making their first application are in the first three years of their academic career following completion of their higher degree. Category B applicants are people of very high calibre who have completed research of a standard that has attracted, or would most likely attract, support from outside agencies such as the Australian Research Grants Committee. The amounts applied for totalled more than A$105,000, or specifically $63,082 for Category A and $71,986 for Category B. Actually, the amounts available were $25,000 for Category A applicants and $115,000 for Category B applicants.

The Committee commented that allocation of special research funds in response to individual applications was desirable. Senate indorsed this view for Category A applicants only. The Internal Research Assessment Committee consisted of Professors C.D. Ellyett (Chairman), J.B. Moore, R.W. Robinson, K.E. Lindgren and J.D. Biggs.

MEETING TO BE HELD TO ALLOW STUDENTS TO EXPRESS WISHES IN RESPECT OF STRIKE CALL

The President of Newcastle University Students' Association (Paul Drinwater) has decided to hold a meeting of NUSA members in the Courttyard of the Union on September 21 at 1 p.m. to discuss the AUS request that students strike on September 30 to express resistance to the Fraser Government's cuts in education spending. The resolutions seeking the strike were initiated by Maqarie University's Students' Council and require an absolute majority of votes cast to be in favour to be carried.

One calls for a national strike of all AUS members on September 30 to coincide with the planned national mobilisation to defend education spending. This strike is to be called in opposition to the Fraser Government's cuts in education spending, in particular the re-introduction of fees for research, postgraduate and undergraduate students, increased spending on education which will affect the quality and availability of education to tertiary and school students. "In view of this motion, students demand:

- Free tertiary tuition for all students,
- No replacement of TEAS for any loans scheme and reduced spending on education which will affect the quality and availability of education to tertiary and school students.
- "Living wage for all students", a second resolution from AUS dates that should the Fraser Government refuse the demands raised through the other motion then AUS call, and work for, further strike and protestation rationally amongst its members and that such action take place within seven days after the announcement of the findings of the Committee of Review into Student Assistance and be initiated by the National Education Policy Collective.

SURVEY OF STAFF PARTICIPATING IN FLEXTIME

As a six months trial period of Flextime has almost been completed in the Central Administration, a survey of the attitudes of those staff participating was undertaken. The survey was in the form of questionnaires, sent to participants, and their supervisors. The response was exceptionally good. Of 96 participants who were sent a questionnaire, 75 returned them (78% response). Sixty-nine staff members indicated that they thought Flextime was superior to previous working arrangements, while 74 out of the 75 responses showed a wish to continue Flextime. Of 10 supervisors sent questionnaires all returned them, also indicating that Flextime should be continued. The response from staff and supervisors was particularly pleasing in that a number of constructive comments and suggestions were made - all of which are currently being investigated. The full results of the survey are displayed on the Personnel Department notice board.

The Vice-Chancellor has approved of an extension of the existing Flextime arrangements for two months, to enable consideration to be given to what changes need to be made, as well as the future of Flextime.
