SOUTH MAITLAND MINES RESCUE STATION
Conduit: Mervyn Copley
Accessioned June 2006 by Peter Gray-Brattan.
Grant Donation by Vera Deacon

The South Maitland Mines Rescue Station Files document the daily workings of the first Mines Rescue Station of its kind in New South Wales. The Station was founded in 1925 with the passing of the Mines Rescue Act 1925, largely in response to the public outcry over the Bellbird mine disaster of 1923. The station remained operative until the mid 1970’s and throughout this time was responsible for the preservation of many lives and valuable property in the Hunter Valley coalfields.

The collection contains numerous notebooks and ledgers that record the names and daily activities of the Mines Rescue Station staff and trainees, as well as documenting the administrative workings of the Station. Equipment registers and records of training activities provide a detailed account of the use of the ‘proto’ apparatus, a breathing device allowing rescue workers to perform in hot and low-oxygen atmospheres. Also contained within the collection are a number of mine maps showing plans of various Hunter Valley mines.
